

Small Rooms

Entrance Gallery

Louis Klee, Jack Palmer, and Eitan Ritz

There is a metaphor in rabbinic literature that describes the Torah as black fire on white fire. This collaborative project aims to explore the boundaries between these fires: between the text and non-text, between poetic language, sound, voice, and space; between the ways in which language is always physicalised and the ways it is soliciting physicalisation.

George Paton Gallery Exhibition Archive 2018
10a: 12 - 21 September