

Process
Simone Hine
5-15 May

Process is a performance and video installation that explores the use of photography in cinema, focusing on Polaroid photographs in crime film. The work plays with cinematic tropes, yet there is no predefined narrative, instead the work presents a series of isolated moments that can be pieced together to generate new and unique narratives.